Safer Home Visiting

A growing number of older Australian's are being supported to remain independent in their homes. The workforce of staff and volunteers is also growing to enable this.

With a mobile aged and disability workforce, now more than ever it is essential that all workers are aware of their responsibilities under the Work, Health and Safety Act 2011 and are able to assess risk and implement controls.

All workers need to be aware of safety behaviours from the initial planning for a home visit all the way through to after the visit.

Topics covered include:

- ◆ Assessment of risk situations
- ◆ Safety behaviours for home visits (before visit, when you arrive, during and after the visit)
- ◆ Your Work, Health & Safety responsibilities
- ◆ Risk identification, assessment, control, monitor and review practices

This workshop will help workers to be more safety conscious when supporting service users in their homes.
